KILLED BY TORNADO

Big Cyclone Sweeps Boone County in Missouri.

Farmer Is Slain and Wife Injured—Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Property Destroyed.

Columbia, Mo., April 4.—One life and possibly two besides several thousand dollars' worth of property loss was the toll taken by a tornado near Sturgeon in Boone county.

George Mathews, a farmer, is dead, and his wife is not expected to live, while a number of farm houses and barns have been demolished or blown away. It is not known at Sturgeon how far the storm extended. It is possible that damage was done even outside of Boone county. Loss was reported in Sturgeon from points at least two miles separated from each other.

The body of Mathews was found under the ruins of his home. He was badly bruised and his head crushed. His wife was found in an orchard where she had been blown by the wind. She is in a serious condition and small hopes are held for her recovery.

At the farm of Luther Green south of Sturgeon a house and two barns were carried away by the force of the storm. Another house near had the top blown off. No damage was reported outside of Sturgeon, it is said, and it is believed no one was injured besides Mathews and his wife.

Nineteen freight cars were blown off the Chicago & Alton railroad track at Larrabee, a short distance north of Sturgeon. No one was hurt there.

VIRGINIA BROOKS WEDS

West Hammond Girl Becomes Bride of Chicago Newspaper Man.

Chicago, April 4.—Miss Virginia Brooks, whose salvation of West Hammond from a political ring gave her title as a modern "Joan of Arc," was quietly married in Chicago. Charles S. Mrs. Flora Brooks, mother of the bride, is visiting in a small town in Ohio. Rev. A. Eugene Bartlett, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, 2024 Washington boulevard, officiated. Shortly after the wedding the couple left the city for Ohio, where they will visit Mrs. Brooks.

PROBABLE CAUSE OF ZAPATA UPRISING

Zapata Uprising Is Cause—Federal Forces Placed Between Two Fires by Southern Insurrection and Peace Is Desired.

El Paso, Tex., April 4.—To satisfy all factions in the Mexican melee, General Huerta agreed to the naming of Pedro Lascurain as provisional president, said advices received here directly from the national capital. Lascurain will serve out the uncompleted term of the late President Madero.

As minister of exterior relations in Madero's former cabinet, Lascurain is entitled to serve as next in line, in view of the deaths of Madero and Vice-President Suarez. The Huerta cabinet will be retained by the compromise.

This arrangement, it is said, has been offered to the Constitutionalists, now fighting the Huerta government in northern Mexico. It is declared that Governor Carranza of Coahuila has agreed and that the Sonora Insurrectionists will fall in line.

Zapata Uprising the Cause.
The decision of the present provisional president is said to have been occasioned by the recent uprising of Zapata in the south, which places the Huerta forces between two fires.

Mexican military men here estimate that Huerta has not more than 14,000 troops in all Mexico with which to meet the situation. This is even less than Porfirio Diaz possessed in combating the Madero revolution.

Madero, on taking office, began recruiting volunteer troops with the expectation of a battle.

STREET FLUSHER IS NEEDED HERE

COMMISSIONERS PLAN TO PURCHASE A MUCH NEEDED MACHINE

The amount of sand and dirt which is thrown on the sidewalks and windows along the paved streets every time they are flushed by the street department has started an agitation toward the purchase of an automatic compressed air street flusher for use in the city. It is pointed out that by use of the sprinkle-flusher, the streets can be cleaned weekly, without throwing sand and dirt on the sidewalks, and that the wagon can be used as a sprinkler at other times. It is understood that the Commissioner of Public Health and Safety has such a proposition under consideration and that in all probability such an appliance will be purchased.

AUTO IS SMASHED BY STREET CAR

AKEMAN SUFFERS IN COLLISION CITY CITY CAR LAST NIGHT.

An auto belonging to Jas. Akeman and occupied by Joe Hamill and John Blackburn, was struck by a street car as it was being driven from the barn on West First street last night at about 9:30. The machine was badly smashed, the wheels on one side being demolished.

WOMEN ISSUE THREATS

London Suffragists Declare Human Life Is in Peril.

Make Statement Following Sentence of Mrs. Pankhurst to Three Years Imprisonment.

London, April 4.—"Human life is now in peril, for we have resolved no longer to respect it and trouble of all sorts must be faced."

This statement was made here following the conviction of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst in Old Bailey, and her sentence to three years penal servitude. Following the threats made on all sides there has been fresh outbreaks. In Plymouth telephone and telegraph wires have been cut. The Manchester art gallery has been visited and the glasses on thirteen paintings smashed.

Renewed activity on the part

NEW LAMPS LIGHTED ON SATURDAY NIGHT

I. N. U. MAKES PROPOSITION FOR PERMANENT LIGHTING SYSTEM.

The boulevard lights which have been placed on the trolley poles on First street between Galena and Hennepin avenues, will be lighted for the first time Saturday night, announcement to that effect having been made today by the I. N. U. officials.

The lights, which are the latest improved pattern of luminous arcs, have been placed to show the people of Dixon the most up to date system of ornamental lighting, and an effort will be made by several live business men to have the system adopted.

The officials of the company announce that they will keep the lights burning from sundown until 11 each night.

The cost of the lamps to property owners or tenants, whichever contributes to their purchase, will be $65 each, there being six to a block. It is pointed out that the installation of lights on ornamental posts would cost much more, while the cost of upkeep and current for the post lamps would be practically the same. At the same time the company officials offer proof that the luminous arcs develop certain candle power—2000—on less than half as much current, and that, therefore, they are more efficient.

I. N. U. MOVES MORE EMPLOYEES TO DIXON

E. D. Alexander, assistant to the president of the Illinois Northern Utilities company, will make his headquarters in Dixon. This will mean a direct representative of the president in Dixon, as well as a complete organization of the company here.

This will also involve moving about eight or ten employees now located in the Chicago office to Dixon.

TRAIN RACERS AT AMBOY.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dabler of Amboy were visitors here yesterday. Mr. Dabler, who is a horse trainer, has a string of 21 horses, some of them exceptionally fast, at the Lee county fair grounds for training and George Brown of Sterling and Wm. Matthews of Chicago, who have six and ten horses respectively, are also training at Amboy. The presence of so many horses insures a most successful matinee on July 4th.

VACATION NEXT WEEK

The students of the south side schools will have a week's liberty next week and are praying for fair weather in which to enjoy a respite from their studies.

NEW LIGHTS MAKE GOOD APPEARANCE

ORNAMENTAL LIGHT POSTS IN FRONT OF COUNTY BUILDING WERE LIGHTED.

The boulevard lights at the street entrance to the court house were lighted last night for the first time in many years, the electricians completing their work in time to turn the juice into the two outer pillars early in the evening. They were unable to complete the connections at the building entrance, but that work will be completed today and all the lights will be in use tonight.

A HUMAN BUZZARD.

About the worst thing we have heard of in some time is the charge against a Columbus, O., undertaker arrested yesterday charged with paying a reward of $25 for bodies of flood victims delivered to his establishment and then, according to the police, robbing the dead persons of valuables found in their pockets. The police charge that over $500 has been taken from the bodies of flood victims taken to A. H. Oshman's place. He is facing a charge of larceny. We could suggest a punishment more fitting to his case than can be administered under any larceny law, if he is guilty of the horrible crime he is charged with.

OHIO RIVER STILL RISING AT CAIRO

Gauge Marks 54.6 Feet and Is Slowly Creeping Upward.

HARD FIGHT AT MOUND CITY

Levees There Are Still Holding, but People Having Strenuous Time—Steamer G. W. Robinson Will Be Turned Into Hospital.

Cairo, Ill., April 4.—Flood conditions remain about same at Cairo as they were excepting the river is a little higher. The gauge marks 54 feet and six tenths and is slowly creeping upward. As long as river continues at such a high stage the situation at Cairo is dangerous. A heavy rain has been falling upon the levee workers, making their task a disagreeable one, yet their efforts were not abated and the work of bulk heading and strengthening the levees proceeded rapidly.

All levees were reported in good condition during the night.

The Ohio parts just above Cairo. Much of the water coming past Paducah runs up Cache and through Lake Creek into Mississippi river. This diversion of the flood water is making the rise on the Cairo gauge barely perceptible, while the Ohio at Paducah is still rising at the rate of more than a foot a day.

Observer R. T. Lindley of local weather office looks for a continued rise at a slow rate until Sunday or Monday, when the crest will be reached some where above the 55-foot mark. He predicts a 55-foot stage late today if the levees hold below.

It is expected that mail service will be resumed in and out of Cairo sometime today by way of boat to Mounds to connect with Illinois Central trains running north.

The Mobile and Ohio will be able to furnish an outlet north as soon as the acute flood stage is over. They have not lost any track north of Cairo and while their road bed is badly washed out, it will not take long to repair it when the water falls. This will give Cairo an all rail outlet north, probably some time next week.

Hard Fight at Mound City.

The levees at Mound City, Ill., eight miles north of Cairo, are still holding back the water. The people there are having a hard fight. Several barges were taken up from Cairo and lined along the Mound City levee on the Ohio side to protect it from the waves.

A large number of negroes, who rushed out of Cairo to hills near Vickliffe, Ky., when flood warnings were first issued, were rounded up and brought back to Cairo by boat. They were put to work on the levees.

Arrangements were made by relief committee to turn the steamer G. W. Robinson into a floating hospital and if it should become apparent that Cairo will be flooded all sick and injured persons will be taken out of Cairo hospitals and placed upon the boat in charge of the local hospital nurses. Refugees are supplied with rations at relief headquarters. One person is given five pounds of bread, three pounds of meat, five ounces of coffee, eleven ounces of sugar, nine ounces of beans, six ounces of rice, four pounds of potatoes, one can of pepper, one jar of soap, one can of corn, one pound of onions, one can of tomatoes, one pound of lard and one pound of salt.

Troops Forced to Move.

The Seventh regiment, Colonel Moriarty's huskies, have been forced to move again. These men were first camped in St. Mary's park, then they were moved to the steamer Marquard, and now they have been stationed on one of the quarter boats.

This move was made so as to order the Marquard ready for service in case of emergency, when it would be used to take care of the homeless and convey them to Wickliffe or some other point.

The naval reserves sent out a detail to Mounds to bring back the militia men, who were caught there when the big Four levee broke. They took a steam launch, a large life boat and an officer and 25 men. The steam launch could not be taken into the drainage district as the boat was too high and would not go under the telephone and trolley wires. The reserves had to row the life boat through drainage district to Mounds and there loaded the militiamen.

DEMENTTOWN
... DOINGS

It is said that the height of indiscretion is to wear a silk hat at an Elks social session.

Do you remember, dear reader, of having heard some time ago that the city council was working on the w-r-r-a-s-q-e-s-l-n?

The Real Trouble.

The auto gave a final despairing heave and died near the park. The young man whose father owned the machine climbed down and looked it over, rolled up his sleeves and got busy. He knew as much about the machine as the average congressman knows about the tariff, and that is very little. The first man came along with advice.

"Take it from me, friend, your car burtor is on the blink," he said and passed on.

The young man got busy with what he supposed was the carburetor, and the second man came along.

"Is the spark plug," he said, and the young man removed several more pieces of machinery in an effort to locate the plug, being almost afraid he would find it.

"It's the feed pipe," suggested the third.

"Your ignition is wrong," said the fourth.

"You've dropped the ash-pan," ventured the fifth.

"Your eccentric is caught on the geewhilkier," said the sixth.

By this time the young man had everything apart but the frame and the wheels and his car was scattered

HUERTA RESIGNS!
TO END WARFARE

Pedro Lascruain Will Serve as Provisional President of Mexico.

PRESENT CABINET TO STAND

Zapata Uprising Is Cause—Federal Forces Placed Between Two Fires by Southern Insurrection and Peace Is Desired.

El Paso, Tex., April 4.—To satisfy all factions in the Mexican melee, General Huerta agreed to the naming of Pedro Lascruain as provisional president, said advices received here directly from the national capital. Lascruain will serve out the uncompleted term of the late President Madero.

As minister of exterior relations in Madero's former cabinet, Lascruain is entitled to serve as next in line, in view of the deaths of Madero and Vice-President Suarez. The Huerta cabinet will be retained by the compromise.

This arrangement, it is said, has been offered to the Constitutionalists, now fighting the Huerta government in northern Mexico. It is declared that Governor Carranza of Coahuila has agreed and that the Sonora Insurrectionists will fall in line.

Zapata Uprising the Cause.

The decision of the present provisional president is said to have been occasioned by the recent uprising of Zapata in the south, which places the Huerta forces between two fires.

Mexican military men here estimate that Huerta has not more than 14,000 troops in all Mexico with which to meet the situation. This is even less than Porfirio Diaz possessed in combating the Madero revolution.

Madero, on taking office, began recruiting volunteer troops with the ex-insurrecto corps as a basis. In the meantime the regular army was not recruited to normal strength. The desertion to the volunteer groups has left the actual government forces far below par.

Mexican Congress Takes Holiday.

Mexico City, April 4.—Although congress opened Tuesday, a general holiday was taken on the anniversary of the capture of Puebla from the French by Porfirio Diaz. General Trevino was given a medal and President Huerta took a holiday for the first time since assuming the presidency.

Zapata has dazed the government and threatened to kill all prisoners of war held by him if the federals move against him. Through his announcement it was learned that, while he had killed the two peace commissioners, he has kept the elder Orozco as a hostage.

General de la O. has 2,000 bandits under him in the state of Morelos, and they are charged with committing many depredations. Ambrasio Figueroa, another bandit leader, has also been most active.

Zapata Has 7,000 Men.

Zapata now has about 7,000 men under him, all being equipped with arms and ammunition furnished secretly by Madero. The government plans to send 10,000 men under the younger Orozco to capture Zapata, but the latter has a tremendous advantage, as he and his men are familiar with the mountain region through which the campaign would be made.

The governor of the state of Colima has reported a new outbreak in that state and has petitioned the government for soldiers and a detachment of rurales to reinforce his troops.

The city of Torreon, state of Durango, is reported under siege of a large rebel band and in grave danger of being captured.

Captain Caesarin, former aide de camp to Madero, was arrested here charged with sedition.

RECOGNIZE CHINA SOON

Wilson to Issue Proclamation After Constitutional Assembly Meets.

Washington, April 4.—President Wilson announced definitely that he will make public his proclamation recognizing the republic of China immediately following the first meeting of the constitutional assembly, scheduled to convene at Peking April 8. It was stated at the White House that the powers were notified of the contemplated action of the government merely as a diplomatic courtesy.

WOUNDS INTENDED BRIDE

Boy, 13 Years Old, Stabs Girl, 7, Who Refused to Marry Him.

Joliet, Ill., April 4.—Michael Raglan, thirteen years old, stabbed Anna Jackson, seven years old, because she would not marry him. The girl will recover. One morning recently the boy obtained several Chicago newspapers of an old date and sold them to get money for the wedding. He has disappeared.

French Seize Zeppelin Ship.

Luneville, France, April 4.—One of the great German Zeppelin air cruisers landed on French territory, coming down on the military parade ground here at midday with a brigade of French soldiers was drilling. It was seized by the French authorities.

GENERAL HUERTA.

Provisional President Huerta of Mexico is reported to have resigned his office in favor of Pedro Lascruain. Zapata said to be cause.

WOMEN ISSUE THREATS

London Suffragists Declare Human Life Is in Peril.

Make Statement Following Sentence of Mrs. Pankhurst to Three Years Imprisonment.

London, April 4.—"Human life is now in peril, for we have resolved no longer to respect it and trouble of all sorts must be faced."

This statement was made here following the conviction of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst in Old Bailey, and her sentence to three years penal servitude. Following the threats made on all sides there has been fresh outbreaks. In Plymouth telephone and telegraph wires have been cut. The Manchester art gallery has been visited and the glasses on thirteen paintings smashed.

Renewed activity on the part of Scotland Yard is evidenced on every hand.

Mrs. Pankhurst herself has furnished the text for the suffragettes. After her sentence before Judge Sir Charles Montague Lush she leaned toward the jury and judge and said:

"I deliberately broke the law, not hysterically, not emotionally, but for a set and serious purpose, because I believe it is the only way."

Following the sentence of Mrs. Pankhurst an effort was made to rescue her from the doors of the Holloway jail. A crowd of women gathered about the jail and cheered her as she was seated in a four-wheeled cab with her guards.

Suddenly one of the women seized the bridle of the horse and backed it, while the driver on the seat endeavored to keep control of the animal. Women surrounded the cab as the horse reared and threatened to overturn it. They were close enough to have reached the captive, when policemen wrenched the suffragette's hand loose from the bridle. Others surrounded the cab and the cab and the horse was led into the courtyard and the gates closed.

DISCUSS LIVING COST

Savants Will Investigate Cause of High Prices.

American Academy of Political and Social Science in Annual Convention at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 4.—The special topic for investigation and discussion at the annual convention of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, which opened here today, is the cause of the high cost of living.

The opening session was largely attended by savants from all parts of the United States. Besides the regular delegate members of the academy, many delegations of citizens were sent by the governors of individual states. Prominent among the states so represented were New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The high cost of living subjects discussed today were "Family Standards" and "Public Control." Porter R. Lee of the School of Philanthropy, New York, presided. Addresses were delivered by Simon H. Patten, Ph. D., professor of political economy, University of Pennsylvania; Prof. Russell H. Chittenden, LL. D., director of the Sheffield Scientific school, Yale university; Mrs. Elmer Black, member of the advisory board of the New York Terminal Market; Mary E. Pennington, Ph. D., chief of the food research laboratory, Philadelphia, and others.

Britons Favor Miss Emerson.

Washington, April 4.—The American charge d'affaires at London, in a report received at the state department, tells that the English authorities have dealt more leniently with Miss Zelle Emerson, the American suffragette who is now serving a prison term, than with the British offenders.

Flagler's Condition Unchanged.

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 4.—Reports from the bedside of Henry M. Flagler state that the elderly railroad builder is holding his own, his condition being about the same.

Do you believe that the ideals of a man determine the quality of his manhood?

Do you believe in the power of influence?

Do you believe an army is better than a mob or a band of gorillas for carrying on warfare?

If you do then consider that the church that has Christ the undisputed ideal of every aspiring soul, that however imperfect men measure up to their ideal they are infinitely better because of the attempt. Consider again that individuals and institutions have influence, that it is inconceivable that the heart of the slave-driver, gambler, whisky vender or re- sort keeper could be filled with a Christ-like passion for the good of humanity, that it is equally inconceivable that one could walk with the Christ and not share his love for mankind. And now if we have traveled thus far in accord why should we part company when the next step is proposed? You believe in good and acknowledge that the church has the proper ideal for man, has organization, has a plan of battle, then

Fashion Hints
From the Bischof Style Show

Seams and Their Absence

Striking Features of the Separate Coat

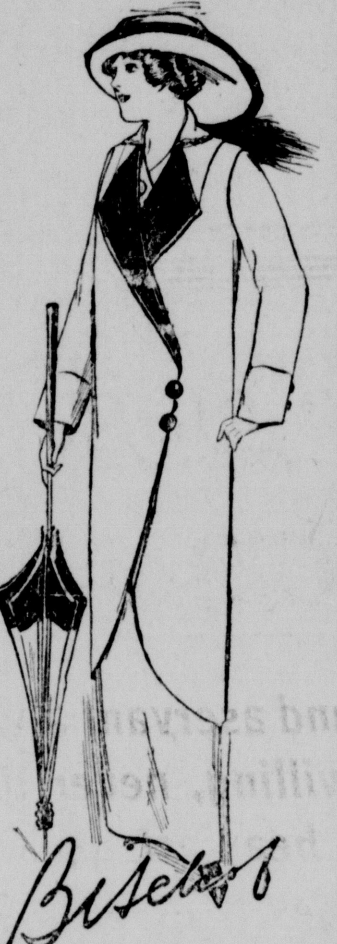

Perhaps the one feature of the separate coats for Spring which caused most comment at the Bischof Style Show, was the slanting seams used in the back of many models. As shown in the illustration on the right, these seams start under the armholes and slope slightly in toward the hem, giving a smart tapering effect. In some models these seams are outlined with groups of buttons.

In direct contrast to this striking use of the seam, was the seamless model shown on the left. For slender figures these seamless coats are remarkably becoming.

The model shown here is of navy serge, with revers and buttons of cerise Peau de Cygne. The white collar is of embroidered pique.

These are but two of the many attractive separate coats by Bischof we are now showing. Among them there is sure to be one which you will say was made "just for you." Come in and see them at your earliest convenience.

I am staunch, a fashionable chap—the famous, reliable swell Heidcap—once caps were worn by the frowsy kid, or teamster or tough so the face was hid—but now I'm the ultra and classy. For the good Heidcap has swagger and snap, and makes of a chap an aristocrat. Of English cloth I'm made for they in England can beat us any day, at weaving cloth in a wearable way but I'm fashioned here in the U.S.A. I'm fashioned here with a sort of go, and swagger and lines that makes you know, that I am the son, that a fellow ought, put on his head if he'd look just so. There isn't a thing that a cap should be, that you won't find, built, into humble me. Best of cloth and best of care in making a cap that's fit to wear—and the owner looks like a millionaire. There's an inference plain from what I've said—the Heidcaps place is at the head.

RINGLINGS' CIRCUS.
Ringling Brothers' circus will open in Chicago for a short season on next Saturday evening, April 5. Two performances will be given daily after the opening night.

For the past several days the Coliseum has been a scene of strenuous activity and the properties and paraphernalia of the big show have been arriving in train loads from the winter quarters in Baraboo, Wis. Early this morning the last train, carrying the menagerie, arrived in the city, and the cages and elephants were escorted through the streets by an admiring crowd of several hundred boys and grownups.

Joan of Arc, the most elaborate and impressive spectacle ever presented by an amusement enterprise of this kind, will be a notable feature of the big show this year. The rehearsals have been under way for 1200 persons. There will be a ballet of 300 girls, a chorus of 300 voices and an orchestra of 100 pieces.

Many new novelty acts have been secured by the Ringling brothers this season from European music halls and will make their first appearance in America at the Coliseum in Chicago. Among these are Charles Alexander Clark, the most daring bareback rider in the world; the Balkani family of Oriental riders; the Janowski family, a hand stand novelty act; the four Portia sisters, famous contortionists; the three Jahns, sensational ladder balancing experts, and the Lorbeer troupe of performers who juggle human beings.

A novel feature of the circus this year will be the baseball elephants, known as Ringlings' Giants, who actually play the national game in the ring and exhibit marvelous skill and intelligence in the sport.

MORGAN'S BODY IS ON SHIP
Casket Taken Aboard Steamer La France at Havre—En Route to U. S.

Paris, April 4.—The special train bearing the body of J. P. Morgan has reached Havre. The transfer of the body at this point to the La France which will take it to America, was accomplished this morning and was accompanied by military honors, this because the financier was an officer of the legion of honor. Just before his death he was made grand cordon of the legion, an honor rarely given except to retiring presidents. The reason for granting it was twofold, first, because of his generous gifts to the hospital at Aix Les Bains, and second, because of his presentation to the Louvre, of the enamels, which the government was anxious to obtain.

MISS ROOSEVELT WEDS

Ex-President's Daughter Bride of Dr. R. H. Derby.

Many Society Folks from New York, Washington and Other Places Witness Ceremony.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., April 4.—Society folk from New York, Washington and other places thronged the Episcopal church here today to witness the marriage of Ethel Roosevelt, second daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, to Dr. Richard H. Derby of New York city. A wedding breakfast was served to a large party at Sagamore Hill immediately after the ceremony. Dr. and Mrs. Derby will sail for Europe tomorrow.

Mrs. Derby made her debut in society at Washington in December, 1908, while her father was president of the United States. As one of the debutantes of the season she was exceedingly popular. When her sister, Alice, was married in Washington to Nicholas Longworth, Miss Ethel was one of the flower girls and attracted the attention of the wedding guests by her quaint and charming manner. As long as her father remained in Washington she was greatly sought after by society and more than one young foreign attache paid court to her. After the family returned to Oyster Bay she became equally popular in New York society, and was always one of the leading spirits of the younger set.

Dr. Derby is a graduate of Harvard, class of '03, and is a young and successful physician. He is the son of the late Dr. Richard H. Derby and a brother of James Lloyd Derby, Roger Derby and Mrs. Samuel A. Tucker. Today's union, therefore, brings together two old New York families.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—The Watermelon and James, two tramps, bantering each other regarding their personal appearance, decide to clean up, acquire new clothes and let their companion, Mike, be the judge as to which is the better looking.

CHAPTER II—Watermelon goes to a barber shop, wins the contents of the cash register from the barber by a clever trick and gets a shave.

CHAPTER III—He discovers a young man bathing in a lake and steals his clothes. While sitting in an automobile he discovered standing empty by the roadside. General Crossman and his daughter, Henrietta, drive up in a car. Assuming that his car is disabled, the general professes assistance. Watermelon hands him a card bearing the name William Hargrave Bachelor. The general recognizes the name as that of a young man who broke the cotton corner in Wall street a few days before. He invites him to dine with them.

CHAPTER IV—Watermelon is introduced to Bartlett, a high Wall street operator, and his daughter, Billy, with whom he proceeds to fall in love.

CHAPTER V—Bartlett, who has been struck by Bachelor's operations, plans to keep the supposed broker with him for a week while he works a coup in the market. He wires instructions to his broker, Watermelon decides to tear himself away from Billy and slink back into the unknown.

CHAPTER VI—While chatting with Billy, the telephone boy tips off Bartlett's message to Watermelon.

CHAPTER VII—Watermelon decides to join Bartlett and the general in a week's auto trip.

CHAPTER VIII—Watermelon slips away and tells his hobo companions of his adventure and asks them to find Bachelor and give him the tramp clothes.

CHAPTER IX—The party starts out with Bartlett's and Crossman's cars.

CHAPTER X—Late at night they come to a deserted house, break in and eat their lunch.

CHAPTER XI.

A Night's Lodging.

The general hesitated. It was not lawful, not right. They had broken in to another man's house and should leave at once. But all his life he had lived by rules and regulations, followed life's blue book as persistently and as well as he did the auto blue book. Now he was lost, the blue book was gone and there was an indefinable pleasure in letting go the rules and regulations that had governed him so long. In the warm July night, with the youthful, foolish Billy, and the irresponsible Watermelon, the general's latent criminal tendency came uppermost, that tendency in all of us once in a while to do wrong for the sake of the adventure in it, for the excitement and fascination, rather than for any material gain. In the experience of being in another man's house unknown and uninvited by the owner, of listening for the rattle of a wagon turning in at the gate, for the crunch of a foot on the gravel without, there was an exhilaration he had not known for years. He felt that a bold lawlessness which he had never had and had always felt rather proudly was only kept under by the veneer of civilization, was rising in him and that he was growing young again. He had always believed that if the occasion arose, he could out-raft Raffles.

"It will not do any harm," he thought with the remains of his old conscience. "We will go directly after supper."

It was a jovial meal. The conversation waxed merrier and merrier. The general grew younger with every mouthful and Bartlett more and more genial. He forgot that he was kidnapping a famous young financier, and told all his enjoyable stories with the skill of many repetitions. When they had finished, no one for a while made any motion to clear up the table preparatory to leaving. Billy, with her chin on her hand, thoughtfully gathered up the crumbs still on her plate and transferred them to her mouth. Henrietta leaned back in her chair, her hands clasped behind her head, gazing dreamily at the flickering lamp Bartlett and the general smoked in contented silence and the Watermelon rolled a cigarette with his long, thin fingers, his old clay pipe discarded with his rags. Alphonse was already asleep. A snore from his corner drew their attention.

The Watermelon licked his cigarette paper and glanced at Billy. "He's got his nerve," said he, putting the cigarette in his mouth and reaching for a match.

"I don't think that any of us have been lacking in nerve tonight," said the general, with no little pride.

"You're dead game sports," admitted the Watermelon. "Let's stay all night."

"It's morning already," said Henrietta. "We have stayed all night."

"Let's sleep here," said the Watermelon. "We can leave early."

"Er—er—are there any beds?" asked the general.

"Father, father," cried Henrietta, "you are backsliding."

The general protested, immensely up-flattered.

The general always looked back on that night and the week that followed with wonder, thankfulness and pride. When the Watermelon, waiting for no further consent, picked up the lamp and started to investigate the bedrooms, the general was the first to follow him.

They found two bedrooms on the ground floor, and though the beds only had mattresses and pillows on them, even the Watermelon did not suggest a search for sheets and pillow cases. The girls took one room, the men the other.

The Watermelon was having the time of his young life. Abstract problems of right and wrong did not trouble him. He took each event as it came and never fretted about it when it was over or worried about the next to come. Bachelor would probably try to make trouble, but if Bartlett were as successful as he hoped to be, and kept on getting lost, there was little danger from that source. Bartlett, desiring secrecy as much as the Watermelon, had effectually silenced the enterprising reporter at the hotel.

It was early when Bartlett awoke. He yawned and stretched, glancing with amusement at the general, still raising melodious sounds of slumber from the couch at the foot of the bed. Then suddenly he became aware that the place at his side was empty, that the Watermelon was gone. He crawled stealthily out of bed and dressed, filled with misgivings.

Bachelor had consented so readily the day before to come with them that now, when he had had time to think it over, he might have regretted his decision and be already on the way to the railroad, somewhere. His had been the master mind to conceive the check and ruination of the cotton scheme, and surely he would see the folly in what he had done the day before, when lured on by the pretty, bewitching Billy. He would realize now in the clear light of day that he must return to the city or get word to his brokers somehow. He might even then be in a telephone office, sending a dispatch of far-reaching importance.

Bartlett dressed with feverish haste and hurried out to the side porch. The Watermelon was there, sitting in the sun, his feet hanging over the edge of the porch, talking carelessly with the immobile Alphonse. Both were smoking and both had apparently been up for some time. Had Bachelor been to the village and telegraphed already? He would have had time to go and return if he had used one of the cars.

The Watermelon looked up. "Hello," said he.

"Hello," said Bartlett. "Been up long?"

"Not so long," said the Watermelon. "Are the cars all right?" asked Bartlett.

"I haven't been to see," said the Watermelon, rolling another cigarette. Bartlett drew a sigh of relief and started after Alphonse for the shed beside the barn. The Watermelon had not had time to walk to the village and back, besides telegraphing. Bartlett paused and glanced over his shoulder.

"Aren't you coming?"

"No," said the Watermelon. "I ain't bugs about the gasoline buggies."

Bartlett walked on, shrewdly guessing that the languid youth was waiting for Billy. Her charms, it seemed, had not grown any less effective. He decided that he would not try to get in touch with his broker. He could trust him to take care of the city end of the business if Bachelor were to be eliminated until the following Sunday.

Bartlett admitted to himself, as he gazed abstractedly at the saining cars, that the young man had not appeared visibly impressed either by himself or the general. But Bachelor was clever and would hide his elation.

The Watermelon's slow crawl at last aroused him.

"Cut it," said the Watermelon. "The cops are coming."

One of New York's leading citizens, bank president and corporation director, felt a slow, cold, clammy chill creeping up his spinal column. His first instinctive desire, like that of the small boy caught robbing an apple orchard, was to hide. Last night was one of those unfortunate occurrences it were best to pass over in silence. He turned and glanced at the house. The place looked deserted in the morning sunshine. The blinds were drawn, the doors shut. The general and the girls apparently still slept, and no country variety of New York's "finest" with warrant and shotgun could be seen approaching. Alphonse looked up from the car and gazed a moment at the house with the scornful indifference for the law and its minions of the confirmed joy-riider.

"I do not see anyone," said Bartlett with calm dignity.

"They are creeping up on us," said the Watermelon cheerfully. "Trust the rube to do the thing up in style. Three men came along. They stopped down by the gate and talked, pointing up here, then one ran on to the village to get help, I suppose, and the other two are waiting down there."

"I will go and explain that it was a mistake," said Bartlett.

"Now, don't do that," adjured the Watermelon. It was just possible that the police had already picked up his trail and he preferred the chance of escaping in a car to stealing away by himself, through the woods, a tramp again, leaving behind him Billy and a week of fun. "Alphonse can bring up the cars and we can slip away before the reinforcements come. See?"

"I will explain that it was a mistake—"

"Mistakes," said the Watermelon coldly, "aren't on the cards in school and the law. Come up to the house and see the others first, anyway."

"One can afford mistakes as well as any other luxury," said Bartlett. "Money is all the fellows want."

"Let's talk it over first with the others, anyway," urged the Watermelon, feeling that it might be that money was not all they wanted.

They found the general and the girls in the kitchen putting it in order.

"Certainly," said the general with the calmness of one immune from the law. "We will explain."

"What?" asked Henrietta, as she drew shut the basket lid and slipped in the catch.

"Father used to say that if what you've done makes a fight, explanations will only make another," said the Watermelon. While he had the time he realized that he should slip away, but there was a chance that the police, finding their youthful quarry in the society of a general and a reputable and wealthy citizen of New York, could be impressed with the belief that they had made a mistake, and the Watermelon was always ready to take chances. Still, there was no need of running needless risk, and if he could persuade them all to escape with him in the cars, he would do it.

Henrietta nodded. Billy was for an instant flight. "We might as well," she explained lucidly, eyeing her father questioningly.

"Not at all," said Bartlett. "Money is all they want."

"An explanation," said the general, "will be sufficient. We do not want any tampering with the law." He picked up his hat and started for the door as he would sally forth and demand the surrender of a beaten foe.

"But, father," Henrietta's clear voice made him pause, "what can we explain?" She pushed back her auto veil and gazed from one to the other in gentle deprecation. "How we got in? But they wouldn't want us to explain that. You see, they can surmise that."

The general came back to the table. A little firmness, tempered with a lucid explanation in words of one syllable had always been his method in dealing with the weaker sex. "My dear Henrietta, we can explain why we are here."

"Why are we?" asked Henrietta meekly.

"Why are we?" demanded the general. "Because we took it for the house of a very old and dear friend."

"But as soon as we entered, father, we knew our mistake."

"Henrietta," said the general, "I cannot argue with you."

"Money," said Bartlett, "is all they want. They always fine all motorists for breaking speed laws. It becomes a sort of habit with them."

"This ain't breaking the speed laws," warned the Watermelon. "This is house-breaking."

"Sir," demanded the general, "do you accuse me, me, of house-breaking?"

"The whole damn family," said the Watermelon brusquely. "This is some different from speed-breaking," he added gloomily.

"This is preposterous!" cried the general. "That I, I, should be arrested! Why, I refuse to be. No one has a right to arrest me."

"If you break into another person's house, father—" began Henrietta.

"But, Henrietta, I am not a house-breaker. I deny the charge."

"We all are," said Henrietta. "That is all I can see to it."

"Money—" began Bartlett again, the refrain of his life. He felt he could not be arrested and haled before a magistrate, even such an humble one as a country justice of the peace. His whole scheme would be ruined. Bachelor would probably want to return to the city as soon as he could bail himself out, and not care to have anything more to do with motor trips run on similar lines.

"No," snapped the general, "we will have no graft."

"Graft," sputtered Bartlett. "Who suggested graft? A wise manipulation of the financial end of a difficulty will more often save you than not. There is no graft in paying for a night's lodging."

"Under the present circumstances, paying for a night's lodging is graft," declared the general.

"It's graft, then, or prison," snapped Bartlett.

"Prison," said the general heroically. "Prison is foolish," said Billy, "when one has a motorcar and can get away."

"Besides," said Bartlett, "graft is not dishonest for the man who gives the bribe."

"It ain't," agreed the Watermelon, "if the man has money enough to give publicly to some college or institution."

Henrietta drew on her gloves. "I think you are all cynics," said she. "Graft is dishonest."

"Why?" asked Bartlett, turning to her. "Why, Henrietta?"

"Because," said Henrietta firmly. "Father used to say that it would take the constitution of an ostrich, the empty head of a fool and the nerves of a prize-fighter to stand poverty," said the Watermelon, thinking of those days when there were eight children and no money.

"I think," said Billy, as one propounding a wholly original suggestion, "that we should go at once."

"If we have done wrong," said the general, "we should suffer for it. We should not attempt to evade the consequences of our acts."

There was a heavy step on the porch without.

The men dragging the highways these days have been doing excellent work by assisting the ground to dry out and leave a smooth surface. The contrast is very noticeable.

John Gallisath was a visitor here Wednesday.

Emmett Mettillie has returned to West Brooklyn from a visit with his parents at Odell.

Mathew Maier of Viola town was here Tuesday.

William E. Bauer was here on business Tuesday.

John N. Zinke was here on business Tuesday.

How many times were you April-fooled Tuesday? We noticed several, not thinking of the election, April-fooled themselves by trying to gain entrance to Ed's and Frank's places.

Fred E. Biggart has some nice potatoes for sale, 55c per bushel.

The Married folk are arranging for a dance to be held at the opera house about the first of May. The entire affair will be for married folks only, and many of the old time dances such as quadrilles will be danced.

Adolph Chaon was here on business matters Wednesday morning.

Most every one was well pleased with the electric lights at the opera house Monday night. This was the first place to be lighted since the company started to work here this spring and within two weeks everyone who has his home or business place wired will be able to enjoy this mode of illumination. The gang of men who have been here since the work started, will leave this week for points along the company's big territory and a new set of men will come to connect the inside wires with those already in place and will also install the meters. The opera house as connected, however, through the grace of Paddy Mighell, the manager of the forces here as a special favor to the management of the hall, and the Easter ball dancing committee.

Supervisor Dysart of Viola visited here Wednesday.

A. G. Frakes of Viola visited here Monday and Tuesday while looking after his farm loss north of town, the damage being caused by the wind storm a week ago last Sunday night, when the entire yard was demolished with the exception of the home itself. Luckily Mr. Frakes carried cyclone insurance and therefore will not have a total loss.

We extend an invitation to all who carry their fire and lightning insurance in the Bradford company, and other people as well, to take out their cyclone, tornado, and wind-storm insurance with us. The rates are very reasonable. Henry F. & Oliver L. Gehant, West Brooklyn, Ill.

C. C. Schnuckel and Andrew Rasmussen were here Tuesday.

Have you ordered your auto license? The roads are getting better, so you had better be prepared for the fever of autoing.

The Forrester's Easter ball given in the opera house Monday night was well attended and equally as enjoyable. The ladies of the church served and like always received many compliments upon their excellent meal. The new electric lights seemed to add much splendor to the occasion and it was not until the early hours of two o'clock in the morning that the merry dancers accepted the Home Sweet Home strain and wended their way homeward. Many out of town guests were present.

D. L. Abell, R. F. D. Carrier or route one from this place had a very sick horse on Tuesday night and at this writing it is not certain whether the animal will totally recover or not. Mr. Abell lost one of his horses about six weeks ago and with this one sick again, he is having a hard time keeping in shape for the mail route.

Mrs. Joseph Bieschke of Viola was a visitor in West Brooklyn on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schroeder of Amboy visited with their many friends and acquaintances in this town on Tuesday. We learned from them of their terrible loss with the burning of their big barn 64x64 a few days ago and that the property is partially covered with insurance. The buildings were in the Bradford while the personal property was insured through the Gehant agency here. The total loss is estimated at about $5,300 with insurance of about half that sum. In the barn were 11 horses and 17 cows that burned, besides hay, grain, machinery, harness, and much other property usually kept in a barn of that size.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lahman were visitors in West Brooklyn on Wednesday.

Don't you know that you are saving a $1.50 on each and every subscription of your Chicago dailies that you order through the News office. C. H. Oester had a big crowd to his sale on Saturday afternoon and a splendid auction resulted. A total of 205 sales for at least 300 items were made during the afternoon which shows that the auctioneer worked pretty fast. Anyone doubting this will please ask the clerk.

The Indiana and Ohio Live Stock Insurance Company is the oldest and original live stock insurance company of the world. It has a paid up capital of $200,000, besides a handsome surplus which renders it about the largest and strongest insurance company in existence besides having the age and experience to give the best service. It is one of the companies included in the Gehant agency at West Brooklyn and people desiring good sound insurance should be glad to insure in this reliable company.

Miss Hattie Blee of Pawpaw visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Christianne on Monday evening.

Frank Halbmaier was here on business Wednesday.

Mrs. Harry Durr returned to her home in Harmon Saturday night after spending the week here with her many friends and relatives.

Prosper Gander, mason contractor, landed the big job of erecting the foundation of the new parish residence for the German Evangelical Lutheran church at Welland. He was in competition with most of the contractors of the surrounding cities and the fact that he under figured them in this case, speaks very well of his reasonable price list.
